

INTRODUCTION

In an age when a great deal of what we believe is stated in the negative as what we do not believe in it seems that an appropriate Christian apologetic is to restate Gospel truth with clarity in a succinct and positive manner. Our Lord, Jesus Christ, regularly addressed the needs of the society with timeless truths that have withstood the test of time. Each generation has challenged these truths with many of the same objections simply redesigned for the age in which the objection is raised. Ultimately the eternal truths of Jesus have converted individuals, cities and nations, and drawn countless people into the full knowledge of Christ as Lord and Savior.

DoveTracts was founded with the intention of being able to restate for this generation, in a positive manner, that which has been revealed by the power of the Holy Spirit in ages past. These tracts are not meant to be exhaustive in their content, but rather to excite the reader into becoming eager to expand in the knowledge of Christ. Tracts are relatively short presentations that can easily be read “on the run” in this mobile society that revels in “bottom line” realities.

Like a good sermon, we can easily determine who “should have read this tract”, but like a fine wine, the words should be savored and become a part of our pilgrimage as “refreshment along the way.”

The test of a good tract is often to be found later when we reread it and discover that it has been incorporated into our “belief system” without necessarily recalling its existence, for all things must point to the Person of Jesus Christ to whom be glory and dominion now and forever.
